Re: Opposition of Innovative to Centennial's Request for Confidential
Treatment, Petition of Centennial USVI Operations Corp. For Designation
As An Eligible Telecommunications Carrier, CC Docket No. 96-45

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On April 29, 2005, Centennial USVI Operations Corp. ("Centennial") filed an Application requesting that the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC" or "Commission") designate it as an eligible telecommunications carrier ("ETC") in the U.S. Virgin Islands.¹ The Act requires that Centennial submit sufficient information for the Commission to evaluate if Centennial has demonstrated that it satisfies the criteria for ETC status, including whether it is in the public interest to designate an additional ETC in the territory of the rural ILEC. In particular, the Commission has required ETC applicants since the 2004 Virginia Cellular Order to file, among other things, a formal build-out plan.² Moreover, Centennial relies on the evidence contained in the confidential plan to demonstrate that grant of its Application would serve the public interest. Because Centennial has filed its five-year build-out plan under seal,³ the public is unable to adequately comment on whether Centennial has met the standard for designation as an ETC.

Innovative Telephone (“Innovative”) respectfully urges the Commission to deny Centennial’s request for confidential treatment. Rather than permit parties to review Centennial’s proof to evaluate whether Centennial’s representations are accurate, Centennial is requesting that interested parties simply take Centennial’s representations at face value. Yet, Centennial’s position prevents the public from pointing out any deficiencies in the Application or to evaluate if Centennial’s representations are accurate. As the Commission has explained, “[t]o offer meaningful comments on [Centennial’s ETC Application], the public must have access to sufficient information.”⁴ Such public comment is particularly important here where Centennial represented that its Application serves the public interest, yet it seeks to prevent the public from reviewing the very documents that support its contentions.⁵

Moreover, ETC applicants, who are seeking substantial government subsidies, routinely submit detailed information so that interested parties may provide comment on the ETC application. Indeed, all applicants seeking designation in a rural area since the Virginia Cellular Order have provided comprehensive build-out plans on the public record. For example, maps filed by Virginia Cellular and Advantage Cellular contained the locations of proposed cellular towers.⁶ In addition, Virginia Cellular and Highland Cellular each provided the site names and locations of proposed facilities, estimates of the population to be served by each site, and an estimated budget for each site.⁷ Similarly, Saipancell provided the location of proposed facilities, the type of facility, the estimated construction costs for each site (initial outlay and costs per month), and the populations to be served by the proposed sites.⁸ Finally, Nextel provided not only the information described above, but also a start date and completion date for each site.⁹ In short, Centennial's request is unwarranted and should be denied.

At a minimum, if the Commission affords any confidential treatment to the information that Centennial submitted under seal on April 29, 2005, the Commission should release the information pursuant to the Model Protective Order so that interested parties' counsel and consultants may review the materials and provide comment. As the Commission has explained, "[p]rotective orders or agreements require parties to whom confidential information is made available to limit the persons who will have access to the information and the purposes for which the information will be used."¹⁰ Such protective orders are routinely used by the Commission in proceedings ranging from the pending AT&T-SBC and Verizon-MCI merger proceedings to the Triennial Review Remand proceeding. Even assuming Centennial's concerns were valid, the protection in such orders is more than adequate to address such concerns.

No. 96-45 at Attachments 1 & 2 (dated Dec. 12, 2003). Copies of Virginia Cellular's and Highland Cellular's build-out plans are provided at Attachment B.

For the foregoing reasons, therefore, Innovative respectfully requests that the Commission deny Centennial's request for confidential treatment or, in the alternative and at a minimum, release the information pursuant to the Commission's Model Protective Order.

March 9 Amendment at p. 5. In addition, Saipancell stated that it would "examine on an ongoing basis whether additional 'fill-in' facilities need to be constructed to reach unserved subscribers." Id. Saipancell noted that, in the absence of a specific request for service, general consumer demand often shifts which can cause a planned cell site to be relocated. Id. at pp. 4-5.
